Mayoral field narrows

Cougill gets more votes
 than Lanman

By KAREN MEDINA
 City editor

Mayor Wayne Lanman and Coscoe M. Cougill will battle for Charleston's mayoral seat in the April general election after eliminating three of the five candidates in the municipal primary election Tuesday.

Cougill, a U.S. Air Force veteran, led the primary with 1,788 votes over the incumbent Lanman, who followed with 691 votes.

When asked about the election results, Cougill said that he was pleased with the amount of votes that he had received.

"I'm surprised at the margin,"
 Cougill said.

Lanman, a 24-year veteran of city government, was pleased with his victory but said that he was disappointed with the margin of the mayoral election.

"Although I'm a little disappointed, we're not giving up," Lanman said.

Charleston voters have not re-elected a mayor in 12 years. Bob Hickman was re-elected in 1981 but left the job in 1982. Clancy Heiffer was appointed to the post in 1982 but had his re-election bid fail in the 1985 election.
 Murray Choate, Lanman's predecessor, was elected in 1985 and defeated in 1989.

Lanman added that he would focus on changing his campaign strategies for the April contest.

The candidates eliminated were: Eastern student Todd Reardon, Brian William Ford and Doug "Radar" Hicks.

Hicks, an Eastern building service worker, finished the race with 77 votes. Reardon, a junior sociology major, followed with 42 votes. Ford, an Eastern graduate, trailed with 20 votes.

Bloody beatings occur on Gus Bus

By JOHN FERA
 Campus editor

"They pounded the shit out of him for no reason at all.
 Mike (McCandless) was near the scuffle and he got punched.
 The bus driver pulled to the roadside and just told them to stop. She didn't do anything like calling the police."

Incidents of violence on the Gus Bus — like this attack told by an anonymous source, as well as in a letter to the editor in Monday's edition of The Daily Eastern News — have raised questions about the security system currently being used by Charleston's alternative answer to drinking and driving.

In the letter to the editor, senior Tina Kramer said two students — one of which was senior Mike McCandless — had been beaten by other passengers riding the Gus Bus. Kramer said McCandless, who was defending the initial student attacked, was left with a bruised and swollen head.

The initial victim was left
 "coughing up blood," Kramer said.

McCandless said: "It was the only time I had ever used the bus, normally I drive. When the fight on the bus occurred, I tried to break it up. The one guy was getting beat up and thrown around on the bus."

"The bus driver kept saying
 'Sit down, sit down,' but she never got out of her seat and called the police or anybody," McCandless said.

McCandless said he got off the Gus Bus at the same time as the badgered individual. He said he did not know the extent of the injuries the beaten student had received or who the person was.

According to the anonymous source, six individuals boarded the bus and antagonized the alleged victim, who had told them to sit down. Then the fight started.

The alleged attackers eventually got off the bus and nobody

Edgar on campus to discuss projects

Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar will hold a press conference Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. in the Faculty Lounge in Buzzard Building.

Edgar will discuss capital development projects that are important to Eastern and the surrounding community, according to the governor's office.

Board of Governor's spokeswoman Michelle Brazell declined to comment on the conference other than it will be "very good news for Eastern and the Board of Governors."

Buzzard Building is fourth on the Illinois Board of Higher Education's capital improvement list. BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell said in a press conference last month that Buzzard will most likely be funded for improvements this year.

The $12 million Illinois Board of Higher Education Request would be used for construction of a new wing and remodeling at Buzzard.

The Governor's office would not confirm if Buzzard will be the subject of the press conference.

In addition, Edgar will be giving a press conference at Danville Area Community College, which has requested $3 million for capital improvements. It is 27th on the list.

Edgar is a Charleston native and a graduate of Eastern.

Member resigns from 'ineffective' Faculty Senate

By DAVID M. PUTNEY
 Administration editor

Craig Eckert's chair sat empty at Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting — a silent protest to a body Eckert said he feels is ineffective.

"I just feel like I wasn't contributing anything," Eckert, an associate professor of sociology and anthropology, said. "My viewpoint was always in the minority."

"When I looked back over a year-and-a-half, I couldn't point to any one thing that I had made a difference on — anything."

The senate accepted Eckert's resignation Feb. 16.

Ed Marlow, Faculty Senate chairman, said the resignaby May. Page 7.

tion came as a surprise to him and the senate. He said Eckert gave no indications that he was upset with the Senate's actions.

"All of us are dissatisfied at one time or another," Marlow said.

Eckert said he was especially upset by the the senate's treatment of zoology professor Kandy Baumgardner at the Feb. 9 meeting. She complained about Faculty Senate member David Carpenter being named to a Board of Governors fellowship.

The senate accused her of criticizing how people spend their sabbaticals, Eckert said.

"I don't like it when somebody can't bring their concerns to the senate and be treated with respect and fairness," Eckert said.

Eckert said he typed his resignation immediately after the Feb. 9 meeting.

He said the senate also ignored "weightier matters" like the integrated core curriculum, textbook rental and wider representation of university groups in favor of petty arguments.

BSU announces winner of contest

By CHRISTINE STARR

The Black Student Union announced the winner of the Parents Appreciation Essay contest at Tuesday's regular its meeting.

The winner of the contest is member Kirsten Lynette Buford. Buford will receive three tickets to the Parents Appreciation Luncheon, the Miss Black EIU Pageant and will also recite the essay at the luncheon. Both events will be held Saturday.

Also at the meeting, BSU President Aaron Bell said March 9 is the deadline for new executive board nominations. Executive elections will be held April 6.

New BSU executives will be required to attend a Minority Leadership Conference at Western Illinois University April 3.

In other business:

•BSU member Lisa Abston said the remaining "Great Kings and Queens of Africa" posters will be on sale at the Miss Black EIU Pageant. T-shirts with the pageant symbol, bracelets, necklaces and medallions will also be sold at the pageant.

•Vice President Elecia Dexter said she has been chosen to participate in the selection committee to elect the new vice president for student affairs. Dexter said she will report the committee's progress at the BSU meetings.

•Bell said the last BSU intramural basketball game will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Student Rec Center.

•The February edition of the Black Student Union Newsletter was distributed also at the meeting.

Textbook rental committee understands views on issue

By DAWN TESSENDORF
Staff writer

The Textbook Rental Review Committee discussed the information it received from its forum Feb. 16, at its regular meeting Tuesday.

The Textbook Rental Review Committee discussed how the forum helped develop a better understanding with a variety of faculty and student feelings on the issue, said Richard Wandling, committee co-chairman.

"Each member of the committee left the forum with a deeper understanding of the faculty and students' views of the textbook rental program and alternatives," Wandling said. "It was very useful for the faculty members of the committee by giving a much better understanding of the student perspective."

With the information from the forum, the faculty members of the Textbook Rental Review Committee hope to have a better understanding of the perspective of student members and vice-versa.

The forum helped clear the air and helped the committee go beyond stereotypical thinking, identify issues and move toward recommendations that all seven members agree with, Wandling said.

"We have to examine the question as to whether there is more information that we need to look at," Wandling said.

office reported that there were a total of 2,690 ballots cast Tuesday.

Charleston precinct 15, the Wesley Foundation at 2202 Fourth St., saw more voters Tuesday than any other polling place. Precinct 15 is used by students living in Lincoln Hall, Douglas Hall, Stevenson Tower and married student housing. About 220 ballots were cast there Tuesday.

Cougill led the race in precinct 15 with 161 votes. Lanman trailed him with 48 votes.

Voters living in Carman Hall, International House, Greek Court and University Court Apartments voted in precinct 17 at Carman Hall. Only 41 ballots were cast there.

did anything, the source said.

There were no chaperones on the bus, he said.

Charges have yet to be filed with University or Charleston police departments.

Officials at campus police said they have not received any calls from the Gus Bus at all.

Gus Bus Coordinator Brent Gage said he had not looked into the situation enough to comment on it. However, he mentioned that volunteers from different student organizations have been riding the Gus Bus to provide security and eliminate the possibility of fights occurring.

"The bus driver has to be aware of a problem in order to do something (like calling the police)," said Gage.

The Gus Bus is supposed to have a radio hookup directly linked to the both police departments. He said that the bus service is always only five minutes away from the police at all times during its normal route.

The bus runs from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. from Carman Hall to uptown Charleston and back.

Billed as a safe alternative to drinking and driving, the bus is overseen by the Student Activities Office and funded through donations from local bars and a grant from an Ronchetti Distributors Co., an Anheuser-Busch distributor based in Mattoon.

The company that is operating the Gus Bus service is the Mayflower Bus Co. in Charleston. Linda Luxander, director of contract services at the company, did not return phone calls from The News regarding the incident.

"I've heard the senate argue for over an hour about whether Eastern Illinois should have a small 'e' or a large 'e' in the University Mission Statement," Eckert said. "I was sitting there going 'Is this what we call a weightier matter?'"

"I never had a high opinion of academics, but my opinion is even lower after my term on the Faculty Senate."

Marlow said Eckert and the senate members clearly had differences in their opinions of important issues that the senate should consider.

"I don't keep box scores on that kind of thing," Marlow said. "That's Craig's perception, and I find it very hard to argue with perceptions."

Eckert, who also served as Faculty Senate secretary, said he found little satisfaction with his senate role in relation to how much time it took away from him. Changing the senate from the inside just simply was not possible, he said.

"There's a side of me that feels like a coward," Eckert said. "I just clearly didn't like what I was doing. It took a long time for me to realize that."

Eckert said many times he doubted that the senate even represented the needs of the majority of faculty, and he said it especially did not meet the concerns of non-faculty members.

"Like any democracy, it represents the needs of those who turn out to vote," he said. "Some people are wedded to their positions, and they will be there 10 or 15 years from now."

"I think they would be very reluctant to see any non-faculty members added to the senate."

Incumbents advance in commissioner race

By TONY PEREZ
Staff writer

Three incumbents in the Charleston city commissioner race will advance to the April 4 general election and will be challenged by five new office-seekers.

Commissioners John Winnett, Bruce Scism and Jim Dunn are among the eight candidates vying for the four city council positions in the general election. Gene Scholes, Maurice W. Manbeck, Brian E. Myerscough, Annette J. Lynch and Greg Stewart will join the incumbents in search of a seat on the council.

Tuesday's election eliminated one candidate, Thomas Michael, who finished with 388 votes.

Finance Commissioner Winnett led the overall commissioner race with 1,328 votes. Winnett is seeking a fifth term on the Charleston City Council.

Scism, seeking his third term, had 1,325 votes. Lynch, the highest-finishing newcomer, had 1,154 votes. Scholes received 1,136. Dunn, seeking his second term, had 1,180. Myerscough had 1,083, Manbeck received 1,047 and Stewart had 910 votes.

Current commissioner Roger Rives did not run for re-election.

Of the four student precincts — 15, 16, 17 and 18 — Dunn received 265 votes and Scism, 264. Scholes got 245 and Wanbeck, 227.

In precinct 16 — a predominately student precinct which has its voting booths located in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union — had Scism leading the way with 12 votes, followed by Lynch with 9 and Scholes and Myerscough with 8.

Winnett — who bombed in student precincts with 196 votes — said he is interested in improving the quality of Charleston's drinking water. He has been a Charleston resident for 56 years and owns a plumbing and insulation business.

Scism, also interested in the improvement of water quality, said he seeks the completion of the city's water system.

Dunn said he feels very strong about the issue of improving Charleston streets by increasing stoplights and street lights in the area.

Myerscough, a Lakeland graduate and Charleston resident supporter, said he would like to repair the sidewalks and sewer lines in the area.

Lynch said her main focus will be the development of recreation centers and an increase of visitors to boost sales for local businesses.

Scholes said he plans on improvements of water conditions and a community center.

Blood drive on course to meet donation goal

By CHAD TURNER
Staff writer

The party atmosphere of Eastern's spring blood drive translated into a successful total of 350 pints of blood donated Tuesday, bringing the drive's two-day total to 577 pints.

Gwen Little, faculty adviser for the blood drive, said that Tuesday's total puts the drive right on track to meet its goal for the week of 1,450 pints.

"Today's turnout was tremendous and helps us make up for a slow day on Monday," Little said.

The blood drive collected 227 of 275-pint goal Monday.

The spring drive will continue Wednesday in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union from 11 a.m.-5 p.m.

Dave Cline, blood services consultant for the American Red Cross, said the increase in donor turnout was due to the participation of the Eastern Juggling Club.

"The response to the jugglers was tremendous, the donors really seemed to be enjoying themselves," Cline said.

"It is imperative that Eastern's drive meet its goal in order to pick up the slack for other drives in the Illinois-Missouri area, which have fallen short of their goals during the last month," Cline said.

"There are too many lives at stake, it is really important that the students of Eastern keep up the pace and help us reach our goal."

Among the 350 people who donated blood

Tuesday was first-time donor George Zuponeck, a senior political science major. Zuponeck said reading of recent blood shortages gave motivation for donating.

Zuponeck said donating was not nearly as painful as he thought it would be and that it was actually a "quite pleasant experience."

Rec Center fee proposals must come to an end

Just when we all thought the controversy with the Student Recreational Center had finished, another wrinkle in the attempt for Rec Center funds has made its way to the forefront.

According to the Rec Center's original agreement, Presidential Board members could still increase student fees by $5. Shockingly enough, members of the President's Council could look at this measure for the 1993-94 Rec Center budget.

To believe a majority of students would want this — or that it is even warranted — is incredible. Hopefully, none of the members of the council will even bring the idea up.

Editorial The $5 increase in student fees could come without a student referendum, which usually occurs when a fee increase is recommended. A student vote is not necessary now because students already agreed on in the first referendum when they decided to fund the Rec Center.

In most years, a $5 student fee increase would not be considered much of a burden to students. But this is not any ordinary year.

Students will probably be taking on a $60 increase in funds through the recommendations of the Council on University Planning and Budget. Members have asked for the increase to help maintain Booth Library and computer services as well as make improvements to the Student Health Service.

Now is not the time to throw another $5 on the fee increase — especially to fund the Rec Center.

It has been a long and arduous period in Rec Center history. The battle for emergency funds from the Apportionment Board was painful to watch, as was the attitude by the center that this money was of utmost importance.

If the Rec Center needs an extra $5 a students, they should attempt to charge a student intramural fee for specific teams — something which Director David Dutler turned down at last week's Student Senate meeting.

A clear message has been sent from the student-run Apportionment Board that they feel the Rec Center should not get any more of the students' funds. To consider increasing the students' fees by $5 is absolutely wrong.

Can't we all just put the Rec Center controversy to bed?

Now for the real election battles

By the time this newspaper goes into circulation, the field of candidates for Charleston mayor and city council will have been narrowed. There are now two mayoral contenders and eight would-be commissioners continuing their campaigns into April.

Tuesday's municipal primary is little more than a small hurdle for serious candidates, alone it can't tell us much about what shape the local government will take in the next four years. But the local contests can always be counted on to address what seem like perennial questions for Charleston — like whether to keep the bar entry age at 19 and what should be done about deteriorating water quality.

In the weeks left before the general election, there will be a host of other questions to ask. Of the remaining candidates, voters need to ask enough tough questions to be assured the mayor and city council will move aggressively forward with an agenda more substantive than the one the current group has attacked this year and last.

An endless series of zoning variances, parking regulation changes and speed limit revisions have constituted much of the city business for the past several months.

The Charleston City Council has made a habit of taking on issues and promising to act quickly, but then dropping the ambition only a few weeks into the work.

The question of what to do about city leases on the Lake Island Tract was delayed until after the year 2000. And although workers with the water treatment plant are studying ways to improve the city's water, the commissioners could stand to move faster on a topic that is probably closer to more residents than almost any other.

Sure, the mayor and commissioners are only part-time representatives, but as a fresh round of prospective council members present themselves voters should try to squeeze from them a promise to work longer, harder and more systematically to resolve local issues. Few parts of the council's regular business can be adequately resolved in only a matter of weeks. Tasks like improving the city water, building an attractive business environment and starting road repairs will take more than a few meetings to work out.

And what about all those executive sessions? It is now routine for the city council to meet behind closed doors for 30 minutes or more before a regular meeting.

There are legitimate reasons for lawmakers to meet privately like matters of personnel hiring or pending litigation. But watching the Charleston group do it as often as once a month or more, it looks like standard procedure. Why so often?

So far, the majority of office seekers have been fairly good about keeping issues in their campaigns. This is a nonpartisan election and the candidates won't have anything to say if they don't discuss something of local concern. Among their other stated goals, they all want to make Charleston a tempting location for developers, improve the appearance of some neighborhoods and generally boost your quality of life.

Nothing you wouldn't hear from a typical office-seeker.

But unless the new city government starts to break with an outdated mold, only a fraction of its work will enter the record as anything more than typical.

Your turn...

Column leaves author's head on the block

Dear editor:

As per request, rather than merely talking about Cassie Simpson's articles at lunch behind her back I am writing in order to offer thanks to Miss Simpson for once again placing her head on the journalistic chopping block for all to take a whack at it.

In her Feb. 16 column, "TV shows how to respect opinion," Miss Simpson shows that despite her recent claim that she has only had one complaint about her style of writing (Feb. 9, "Have you got a problem with me?"), it isn't for lack of trying. In her most recent column attempt, Miss Simpson is shown to be once again practicing her cafeteria-style form of journalism.

Lacking flavor or sustenance, Miss Simpson covers her argument for freedom of speech in a rather bland anecdote about a recent episode of "Northern Exposure." Lacking the nutritional value of a Twinkie, the article fails to even entertain.

The article, simply put, is filler. Like leaving the cafeteria after eating the spaghetti with meat sauce, the reader is left wondering, "Why did I bother? It'll only give me gas later."

In society, expressing an opinion without being able to back it up intelligently is not a valid argument. For Miss Simpson, however, it is a column.

Rental removal angers parent paying the bills

Dear editor:

It troubles me to hear Eastern taking steps to eliminate the Textbook Rental System. The cost of such a system saves students and parents is astronomical.

Books can cost anywhere from $360-$600 per semester at Black Hawk Junior College in the Quad Cities, my area of the state. Over a four-year period, such costs could add $2,880 to $4,800 to the cost of education.

Who is pushing for this change? What rewards are there for those pushers if book rental is abolished? As a parent who is footing my son's bill, I would like a list of the people who are on the committee which will decide this issue. I also believe their vote should be made public.

I can only believe that the school has not heard a cry for abolition of the book rental system from the parents of the 10,000-plus students. In many cases, they will be footing the $2,880-$4,800 bill.

Black History Month celebrated through dramatic interpretations

Play highlights black leaders' achievements

By MATT GIORDANO
Staff writer

Black History Month nears its ending with a display of talent geared toward educating all cultures of the significance of African Americans.

The program was coordinated by the Taylor Hall Black History Month Committee. It highlighted the accomplishments of black leaders in American history.

The play started as a dream sequence of a student, played by Jeff Waldoff, who knows little about black history. Students then portrayed various figures in African-American history, including Harriet Tubman, Jackie Robinson, Charles Drew, Malcom X, Martin Luther King, Jr. and Spike Lee.

Dwayne Smith, coordinator of the event, said the purpose of the program was to "educate and entertain people of all cultures. It was meant as a tool to show great figures in African-American history."

The drama did just that, said student Chuck Walbert, who added "he definitely learned a lot about the history of the African-American culture."

"The performers did a great job at portraying the lives of key black leaders," Walbert said.

Walbert said before this play he "knew nothing about Rosa Parks" and now has a "better understanding of what she and other African Americans were put through."

Rosa Parks was portrayed by student Patricia McClure.

McClure demonstrated the bravery of Parks, who stood up for her rights. Parks' bravery led to the Montgomery white bus boycott, which was the beginning of a civil rights era.

Jocelyn Clark, a resident of Taylor Hall, said, "The program fit into Black History Month by educating people who don't know a lot about the culture."

By attending the program, Clark said she "gained insight of the detail in the lives of many black leaders."

Participants in the play hoped to "demonstrate the many barriers that blacks were faced with," said Steve Pope, who portrayed Jackie Robinson, the first African American to join major league baseball.

Members of the Thomas Hall Black History Month planning committee were "very pleased with the audience turnout," which included more than 50 students, said Joe Flynn, a participant in the program and member of the committee.

Black History Month will conclude on Eastern's campus with the drama, "Learning the Hard Way." It will be performed in the Coleman Hall Lecture Room at 8 p.m. Wednesday and Friday.

Union availability still being debated

By ANDY PURCELL
Staff writer

With plans still in the early stages, the proposal to make additional space in the Student Activities Office available to a limited number of student organizations has already drawn mixed reviews.

Joan Gossett, director of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union, said plans to construct six cubicles from two offices already in the Student Government/University Board Room of the Student Activities Office are currently waiting until after approval of the Union Board's budget for further consideration.

The area chosen for the site of the proposed reconstruction is currently divided between the Black Student Union, Black Greek Council, Inter-Fraternity Council and Panhellenic Council. The remaining space is occupied by the Student Government and the University Board.

The proposed project would require the construction of three walls to create privacy and office space for additional student organizations.

"We know the modules would cost at least $50,000 to put in the Student Activities office," Gossett said.

However, individuals affiliated with organizations using the Student Activities Office have expressed mixed reactions to the idea of constructing new offices in the existing space.

"It's a lot of money (to spend on a project), and it's only going to service two or three more groups," said Amy Jobin, executive director of the Student Government, one of the organizations occupying space in the Student Activities office.

Jobin said the Hispanic Student Union, the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Allies Union and Oasis (the Organization of Adult Students both Informal and Supportive) all requested campus office space at a recent Union Board meeting.

Gossett said that before funds can be approved, the Union Board wants to establish set criteria to determine what organizations would occupy the new offices.

Jobin believes set criteria may not solve anything.

"There are more than three groups that will want offices, and where do we draw the line as to who gets an office and who doesn't?" Jobin said.

Jobin said that the productivity of the Student Government or the other occupants will be affected if new organizations move into the office. Jobin said she is concerned with the financial aspect of the proposal.

"I don't see the traffic being a problem. However, the money does concern me," Jobin said.

Jobin cited increases in operational costs, such as phone bills and maintenance and an increase in the amount of money students pay for union fees as other drawbacks to the project's estimated $50,000 price tag.

She added that the cost for building the cubicles in the Activities Office could result in as much as a $5 increase in the $48 union fee that all students pay.

Chad Bandy, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, said he supports giving office space to additional campus organizations.

"As long as an organization proves it's stable, then they deserve to have some office space," Bandy said.

Bandy also mentioned the problem of determining what organizations receive the additional space could possibly be solved by giving office space to the organizations that serve the most students.

Fines collected decrease

By ADAM McHUGH
Staff writer

Fines collected for parking violations on campus in January fell slightly from the past two years, according to statistics released this week by the Business Affairs Office.

Total fines collected from the fiscal year, which begins on July 1 and ends on June 31, were also less than those from the 1991 and 1992 years.

According to the report, revenues collected from parking violations totaled $6,960 last month, representing a decrease from the $9,704 collected in January 1992. Tabulations for the past fiscal year were $77,703, a far cry from the $97,110 totaled in 1992.

All revenues collected from parking violations and various fees are put into an interest-earning savings account that is used for parking lot upkeep and maintenance throughout the campus, said Suzanne Chouinard, assistant administrator for the Business Affairs Office.

Charles Colbert, vice president for business affairs said, "All of the money we collect goes back into the lots, that is its only use."

Breakdown of parking fines and fees accumulated by the Business Affairs department:

Fines collected from parking violations on campus:
(fiscal year total in parenthesis)

Jan. '91	Jan. '92	Jan. '93
$16,813	$9,704	$6,960
($107,724)	($97,110)	($77,703)

Money collected from parking stickers:
(fiscal year total in parenthesis)

Jan. '91	Jan. '92	Jan. '93
$14,667	$16,384	$20,552
($141,976)	($144,656)	($177,267)

Chouinard added it is illegal to use funds raised from parking violations for anything other than parking lot maintenance.

Sgt. Ronald Osborne of the University Police Department attributed the decrease in generated revenues to the increase of signs on campus that warn of parking violations. Osborne added that he believes students have become more cautious at the end of January when they become accustomed to the system, thus resulting in the decrease in fines collected by University Police.

"We give out many tickets when the students first come back because they are sometimes new or simply forgot which area are faculty lots," Osborne said.

Parking fees, which include the purchase of student permits, increased in January despite a $3 increase in their cost from $30 to $35 for a two-semester permit.

"I'm rather surprised that with the increase in lot costs that this many students have purchased them. It has been very effective," Chouinard said.

Revenue from parking stickers fees from January totaled $20,552, an increase of over $4,000 from January 1992.

Fees collected in the total fiscal year amounted to $177,267, a drastic increase from the $144,656 collected last year.

Pro-Communists protest Yeltsin

MOSCOW (AP) — Rallying behind red flags and portraits of Lenin, more than 10,000 supporters of Communism marched to the Kremlin on Tuesday to denounce President Boris Yeltsin and urge the military to rise against him.

"The walls of the Kremlin are not shaking from our cries. The people inside are shaking!" hard-line legislator Sergei Baburin declared over loudspeakers to the biggest pro-Communist demonstration in months.

Yeltsin was on vacation at his country home outside Moscow, and there was no immediate reaction from his administration to the outpouring of discontent.

Two years ago, equally large protests by Yeltsin supporters helped bring him to power. But his supporters virtually surrendered the streets to pro-Communists this year and last year.

Yeltsin appears to pay little attention to the opposition demonstrations, despite the importance of public opinion as Russia heads for a possible referendum on the powers of the presidency. A defeat in the nationwide vote in April could cripple his economic reforms, or even force new presidential elections.

The rally came on Defenders of the Fatherland Day, known as Soviet Armed Forces Day until the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991.

Leading the march were 10 rows of officers in greatcoats and tall fur hats, marching in lockstep 15 abreast and singing revolutionary songs.

They were followed by mostly older Muscovites, pensioners and veterans, many wearing war medals on their breasts.

Also on foot, surrounded by admirers, were several men accused of leading the failed August 1991 coup, including former KGB Chairman Vladimir Kryuchkov and former Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov.

Police sealed off central Moscow to traffic, although the crowd — variously estimated at 10,000 to 30,000 people — was allowed to rally in Manezh Square, adjacent to the Kremlin. Riot troops in buses blocked the entrance to Red Square, but there were no clashes.

May target for college restructuring

By STEPHANIE CARROLL
Staff writer

The Academic Area Restructuring Committee intends to have its plan for the reorganization of colleges ready for approval by May 1, Barbara Hill, vice president for academic affairs, told the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

Members will construct a model for rearranging Eastern's current system of six colleges, using the recommendation made by the Council on University Planning and Budget. The recommendation calls for consolidation of Eastern's current colleges to save the university at least $300,000.

Hill predicted some opposition. "We're never going to satisfy 100 percent," Hill said. "We do have to find a model that's acceptable, though."

In order to meet the announced deadline, the committee will meet in early March to begin planning a model for the restructuring. Members will have less than two months to construct a final model.

Hill said this is a "terrible" amount of time to come up with such a major decision.

Faculty Senate Chairman Ed

Marlow said the time limit might be beneficial.

"There's an advantage to moving along quickly," Marlow said. "The longer we wait, the more agony we build. It's like waiting to go to the dentist, the longer you wait, the more agony is built up."

The committee is composed of members from each group that may be affected by the restructuring changes. Representatives will include a faculty member from each of the six colleges, two members from the Council of Deans, two members from the Council of Chairs, one member from the Council of University Administrators, two members from Faculty Senate, one member from Student Senate, one member from the Graduate Student Council, one member from Academic Development, one member from the School of Adult and Continuing Education, one member from Graduate School and one member from Booth Library.

On March 4, the committee will meet to develop the model. This model will then go out to the campus community, with the intent of gaining feedback.

Hill said the committee hopes to gain feedback from open discussion meetings the Faculty Senate will hold April 5-16. The feedback will be collected by the committee and amendments to the model will be made.

The prepared model will be sent to President David Jorns on April 30.

The Council of University Planning and Budget's goal of reducing $300,000 will be reached by cutting administrative costs and having fewer colleges. Hill said the consolidation will result in balance in the of the number of faculty and number of majors in each of the colleges, said Hill.

Specific administrative positions changes in each department will not be considered at this point in time. She said the final structure of the school should come first.

"First, think about the model," Hill said. "Then, think about administrative needs. We can't think of people when we think of a model for the colleges."

Hill said because most deans and associate deans are tenured in their departments, there will not be a problem when some deans' positions no longer exist after the consolidation.

"(Deans) will probably go back to the instructional area," she said. "This will free up administrative dollars."

Hill also said whole colleges will not be joined together. Instead she said specific departments in each college will be reorganized into other colleges.

Hill also said no departments will be eliminated.

In other business, Robert Saltmarsh, faculty representative to athletics, addressed the senate with concerns of the Illinois Board of Higher Education's proposal as part of the Priority, Quality and Productivity Initiative to withhold state funds from collegiate sports at Eastern.

Saltmarsh said this would be an immediate loss of approximately $356,000. Funds for talented student awards and coach salaries are derived from this amount.

"If this happens, we can say goodbye to intercollegiate sports at Eastern," Saltmarsh said. "It's threatening because it is a big chunk of money that we'll be missing."

Saltmarsh said simply raising prices to football and basketball game tickets would not help.

Stone asks housing for dorm polls in spring

By CHRISTINE STARR
Staff writer

The Student Senate elections chairman hopes to increase voter turnout for the spring Student Government election by announcing candidate names early and setting up polling places in all residence hall lobbies and in Greek Court.

Chairman Jody Stone said he will speak to the Housing Office and the Residence Hall Association about setting up polling places in the residence halls for the spring election, which will take place April 21.

"Our (elections) committee has been planning considerable change," Stone said. "Our goal is to get everyone to know the elections are happening. There has been a 10 percent voter turnout (in past elections)."

In last fall's elections, 931 ballots were cast. The 1992 spring election, in which the senate's executive officers were elected, saw a turnout of 1,176 voters.

Stone said he is considering holding two forums in the Library Quad where students and a panel will be able to ask the candidates questions.

"Before (the candidates) run, we want (students) to know the issues," he said.

The Student Senate is also considering plans to hold an education forum for senate candidates before the election. This forum would be an informational seminar to educate senate candidates on the responsibilities

Student senate to discuss campus recycling program

By SHERRY SIDWELL
Student government editor

The Student Senate will hear from Stephen Falk, Eastern's vice president for institutional advancement, on future plans for the campus recycling program Wednesday at its regular meeting.

The senate will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Arcola-Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Speaker of the Senate Luke Neumann said Falk will address the senate on Eastern's recycling warehouse, which will be relocated from Mattoon to the east side of the Physical Plant's central storage building in late May.

"There is a question on whether Eastern will renew the lease on the warehouse (in Mattoon)," Speaker of the Senate Luke Neumann said. "He'll be filling us in on the status of the warehouse and what may be done with it."

The senate will also discuss plans for ties they would have as senators.

All executive office seats will be open for the spring election. Executive offices include student body president, executive the spring Student Government elections, which will take place April 21, and vote on a non-senate elections co-chairperson.

Neumann said the Legislative Leadership Committee, which is made up of the chairpersons of the senate's eight committees, will conduct interviews with the two candidates for the position Wednesday. The senate will then vote on whether to approve the committee's selection.

"We'll also be looking into setting up polling places," Neumann said.

Senate elections chairman Jody Stone said he hopes to put polling places in all residence halls and in Greek Court.

After he clears this with the Housing Office and the Residence Hall Association, the senate will have to draft an appropriate resolution on it and hold a full senate vote," Neumann said. "We're hoping to make an educated decision on what will be best for elections and get the best turnout."

vice president, financial vice president, chief of staff and Board of Governors representative. Nineteen senate positions will also be filled in the election.

Senate members up for re-election include all appointed students: Wendy Lee Hausman, Julie Tizzard, Dave Boland, Amy Compton, Charles Phillips, Jr., Matt Yegge, April Gowdy and Amy Levine.

Elected members whose terms are expiring include: John Goveia, Tom Puch, Chad Turner, Karie Rice, Dan Byer, Cash Boyd, Chris Liberatore, Jody Stone, Bobby Smith, Sarah Lahr and Tom Jaminski.

Stone said any Eastern student can run in the elections. Candidates must have 12 or more semester hours and a 2.25 cumulative grade point average. Candidates will be required to live in the district they represent during their term.

Candidate petitions will be available immediately following spring break. Students must bring a valid ID to the Student Government office in Room 201 of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union to pick up the petition, a copy of the Student Senate constitution, the Student Senate by-laws and a grade release form.

Students considering running for office will have 10-15 days to fill out the petitions. Petitions for senate offices will require 25 signatures. Petitions for executive offices will require 100 signatures.

The petition signatures must be from the district the candidate will represent.

There will be an informational meeting for candidates shortly before the election and a drawing to organize the order of names on the ballot.

Health fair and symposium to begin Thursday

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Staff writer

Eastern will host its first-ever Health fair and symposium in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union Thursday and Friday.

The health fair is coordinated by Eastern's College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation and Minority Affairs office. More than a dozen different university departments and offices will also be assisting with the fair.

The event is free and begins at 8 a.m. on both days.

According to Ollie Ray, professor of health studies and the health fair coordinator, the outlook for the health fair is positive.

"We are hoping a lot of people will attend," Ray said. "We have been planning the health fair and symposium since September."

"Overall, I think the fair will be great," Ray said. "We have gotten so much help from the student and the campus. This is the first time so many organizations have gotten together for one cause."

"The goal of the fair is to promote psychological, physiological and spiritual health and well-being," Ray said.

The health fair will begin Thursday evening with back to back oral presentations in the Charleston/Mattoon room of the

Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Jorns will give the first speech. His address, which begins at 7 p.m., is titled "HIV/AIDS: Administration and its Perspective on Health and Safety of Employees in the 1990s."

Following Jorns' speech, a presentation also confronting AIDS will be given by Phill Wilson, an internationally known AIDS/HIV researcher in the African-American community.

A total of 18 50-minute workshops will top the health fair's schedule for Friday.

The workshops will confront health-oriented subjects ranging from cancer, to AIDS, to sexual assault, to obesity.

Other workshop topics will include dental health and diabetes research.

Registration to attend the workshops will begin at 7:15 a.m. Friday.

The workshop presenters range from faculty from Eastern, Illinois State and Indiana universities to health professionals from the American Cancer Society, the Illinois Department of Public Health and the Southern Illinois Public Health Association.

"We got the best people money could buy," Ray said. "The students worked hard and were successful in getting some outstanding people here."

Ray is looking forward to hosting another Health Fair and Symposium.

"I hope we have another fair next year," Ray said. "A lot of organizations could not help this year, but asked to help at next year's health fair."

Along with the workshops, more than 25 health organizations will construct exhibits in the Grand Ballroom. There will also be health screenings for the health fair participants provided by the faculty and staff of Eastern's physiology lab in the physical education department.

Play will address racism

by CHRISTOPHER PRINCE
staff writer

"Learnin' the Hard Way," a play written and directed by two Eastern students and sponsored by the Taylor Hall Black History Month Planning Committee, will start to run out the month's activities Wednesday with the first of its two performances.

The play, written and directed by students Terrence Trimuel and Arnold Mock, will deal with racial stereotypes.

The first performance will be Wednesday night at 8 p.m. and the other Friday night at 8 p.m. Both will take place in the Coleman Hall Lecture Room and are free of charge.

"Everyone can learn from this kind of program," Trimuel said. "I would like to see everybody come out."

Last year's Black History Month play dealt more with the general standpoints of racism. It lasted only 15 minutes and was regarded as a test. There was such a positive reaction from the large audience that the committee made the play its main event for this year.

With more time this year, the performance was extended to about an hour.

The play is broken into five scenes and takes place on a college campus.

"I want to commend the staff for all their work," Mock said. "It took a lot of sacrifice on all of their parts. We have been working on this play almost constantly all month."

Along with Trimuel and Mock, the actors and actresses in the cast include Dwayne Smith, Todd Utz, Kevin Evans, and Tanisha Moore. All are members of Taylor Hall's Black History Month Planning Committee.

Others in the play are Anthony Woods, Kevin Kerr, Alice Harper, Julie Hale, Monjero Elston and Jon Hill.

The play will offer an equal balance of comedy and drama in an attempt to educate the audience.

Apartheid expert to give lecture

by BRIAN HUCHEL
staff writer

An anti-apartheid speaker will lecture Wednesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in Tarble Arts Center.

Randall Robinson will, for the first time on the Eastern campus, be giving a speech as part of the One Nation: Many Voices lecture series. His lecture is titled "U.S. Foreign Policy Toward the Third World in the Post Cold War Era."

Though the lecture is open to the public and free charge, seating is strictly limited.

The lecture is sponsored by Eastern's Cultural Diversity Committee.

"He is an expert on apartheid and American politics with third-world countries," said Johnetta Jones, director of minority affairs at Eastern. "He is one of those people who are experts in a certain field and can be a catalyst for change."

"He has done more the anti-apartheid movement than anyone else," Jones said. "We are extremely fortunate to have someone of his quality and caliber to come to speak on campus."

Robinson has had much experience with apartheid. As a spokesman for Nelson Mandela in the U.S., Robinson has become a stand-out figure in the battle against apartheid.

In his career, Robinson has lobbied for numerous sanctions against South Africa. He is currently the executive director of TransAfrica, a Washington D.C.-based lobbying group for Africa and the Caribbean.

Robinson was also involved in the Southern African Relief Fund, which raises money for groups fighting the Pretoria government in Africa.

As a Harvard Law School graduate and recipient of an honorary doctorate for Columbia College in Chicago, Robinson has appeared on numerous news programs including "Nightline," "McNeil-Lehrer" and "Crossfire."

Capitals beat Blues for sixth straight win

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Mike Ridley scored two power-play goals and Don Beaupre set a club record for most career wins by a goaltender as the Washington Capitals remained unbeaten since the All-Star break with a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues on Sunday.

Washington has now won six in a row, one shy of its longest streak this season. Two of those victories have come at the expense of the Blues, by a combined margin of 15-8.

St. Louis has lost five of its last seven.

Ridley put the Capitals ahead early with his 20th goal of the season at 9:06 of the first period. It marked the eighth straight season in which the center has scored at least 20 goals.

He then added No. 21 by tapping in a perfect feed from Dimitri Khristich with just 11 seconds left in the second period to give the Caps a 3-1 lead.

Ridley also assisted on Sylvain Cote's third-period goal, giving him 13 points in his last eight games.

Washington got its other goals from Todd Krygier, shorthanded at 2:25 of the second period, and Kevin Hatcher on the power play at 13:46 of the third. Hatcher's goal was his 24th, breaking his own team record for most goals in a season by a defenseman.

Craig Janney and Brett Hull scored for St. Louis, the only blemishes on an otherwise routine 19-save performance by Beaupre, who won for the 95th time in his Capitals' career to surpass Al Jensen's previous team record.

Hull has now scored in each of his last six games to give him 43 goals for the season.

Quebec 6
Edmonton 3

QUEBEC (AP) — Valeri Kamensky scored twice and assisted on Mike Ricci's go-ahead goal, one of four by Quebec in a span of 5:46 in the third period, as the Nordiques notched their fifth straight victory with a 6-3 beating of the Edmonton Oilers on Tuesday night.

The goals by Kamensky were his first since he returned three games earlier from a broken ankle that had sidelined him since Oct. 27.

Steve Duchesne, Joe Sakic and Owen Nolan also scored for the Nordiques, who are 5-0-1 in their last six games.

Spring Training report Pittsburgh reliever struggles to recover after '92 playoffs

The Associated Press

Belinda's mailbox hasn't brought him a lot of encouragement this winter. Giving up the hit that would be the pennant for your team will cause that. "I had a lot of hate mail," the reliever said. "But people were judging my whole career on one hit. They don't remember the situation I was put in. The debatable calls. There was a whole slew of things that went wrong that inning."

Right now, it appears Belinda's career will be remembered for his 2-1 fastball to Atlanta's Francisco Cabrera in Game 7 of the 1992 NL playoffs last Oct. 14. Cabrera lined the pitch into left field for a two-run single.

People say I must be awful to give up a hit to a guy off the bench," Belinda said at the Pittsburgh Pirates' camp in Bradenton, Fla. "I sort of felt like a dog all winter. But nobody brought up the situation I came into. I'm not a high-profile closer. I'm a miracle worker. But I tried my hardest. I gave 100 percent."

While Belinda was looking behind, the Cincinnati Reds were looking ahead. Owner Marge Schott stopped by camp Friday at Plant City, Fla., before his one-year suspension begins March 1.

I have talked to Mrs. Schott this morning and at the time she had not made a decision as to whether she will or will not come," Reds general manager Bob Bowden said Tuesday. "I called her not to talk about that, but then it came up. I would recommend she does come and meet with the team."

Baseball's executive council on Feb. 3 suspended Schott for one year and fined her $25,000 for using racial slurs against blacks, Jews and Japanese. Schott will be prohibited from non-public areas of the training camp after her suspension begins Monday.

"We can't let it affect us," second baseman Bip Roberts said.

My focus, and the rest of the guys' focus, is on the ball. I think it makes no difference whether or not she addresses us." Back on the field, players are beginning to come back injuries talked about their hopes for the new season.

I wasn't able to show them that they could count on me coming back," Dale Murphy said at the Philadelphia Phillies' camp in Clearwater, Fla. "So many moves that were made were great."

I totally understand what they're doing with Wes Chamberlain. As far as my situation, we'll let that be the care of itself."

Chamberlain started in left for the Phillies last year but hit .234 and was demoted. He is the front-runner to play right field this season.

Murphy, who needs two homers to reach 400 for his career, has the chance to make $1.45 million if he plays regularly.

"He looks better than any time last spring," manager Jim Fregosi said. "I know it's early, but Murphy shows no signs of having a knee problem."

Kirk Gibson, who will be 36 in May, is back with the Pirates. He hasn't had a productive season in the big leagues since 1988, and was released by the Pittsburgh Pirates last May.

I think Gibby was floundering after he left the Pirates," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said. "He's a tough guy. As tough as he is, he needs a place like this."

World Champions have different look

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays that open the season in Seattle on April 6 will be a lot different from the team that beat the Atlanta Braves in the World Series last October.

The departure of Dave Winfield, Candy Maldonado and Kelly Gruber means a shift in emphasis from power to speed. Reliever Tom Henke and shortstop Manuel Lee signed with Texas, Jimmy Key signed with the New York Yankees and David Cone signed with the Kansas City Royals.

The new-look Blue Jays have Paul Molitor, Dave Stewart, Danny Cox, Darnell Coles and Dick Schofield.

"I'll really miss Jimmy and Henk," Jack Morris said. "If I got close to anyone here last year, it was those two guys. But that's part of the game and we'll still be friends. We're enemies for one game when I'm pitching and that's it." Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston says Morris will extend his American League for consecutive opening-day starts with his 14th.

The 37-year-old right-hander became Toronto's first 20-game winner, going 21-6.

"Jack is going to be our man," Gaston said. "He deserves it." Morris, who spent his winter tending to his fields of wheat and barley on his new ranch in Montana, likes to hear that.

"It'd be kind of nice to keep that going," he said.

"He needs to be wanted, and he is here. He can yell at me and I can yell at him and he knows it's no big deal, that it'll be all right. Don't tell me Gibson can't help us if he's used right."

There's nothing wrong with the man," Vince Coleman reported to the New York Mets' camp at Port St. Lucie, Fla., and said he hopes he won't get hurt in 1993.

"For seven years, I had no major injuries," said Coleman, a six-time stolen base champion with the St. Louis Cardinals. "To come to the Mets, where you're a newcomer and want to play well, and not being able to play has been very frustrating."

Coleman spent almost his whole off-season in Arizona with taekwondo instructor Mack Newton. The outfielder called his two-hour, six-days-a-week workouts, from Nov. 15 to last Friday, the most strenuous he has endured.

"We did a lot of stretching, calisthenics and biometrics," said Coleman, who was in group with six players that included Dave Stewart and Bob Welch. "I know now I'm more flexible than I have ever been. I just pray and knock on wood that my health holds up."

Mark Davis, who has struggled since winning the National League Cy Young Award four years ago, says he doesn't let criticism get to him.

"I try to put all that out of my mind, not think about it, because when I do, I dwell on it inside," the Atlanta Braves reliever said at West Palm Beach, Fla. "I certainly don't apologize for anything."

Buckeyes knock off Hoosiers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jamie Skelton hit 3-point shots at the end of regulation and with 40 seconds left in overtime as Ohio State — winners of only three of its last 11 games — upset No. 1-ranked Indiana 81-77 Tuesday night.

With the score tied at 77, Skelton, who led Ohio State with 22 points, was wide open from the top of arc and hit his fourth 3-pointer of the game to put Ohio State ahead 80-77.

Lawrence Funderburke later added a free throw as Ohio State moved to 13-10 overall and 6-8 in the Big Ten. Indiana fell to 24-3 and 13-1.

Indiana, which had a 13-game winning streak end, almost pulled out a victory in regulation thanks to a controversial call.

Skelton hit an off-balance 3-pointer with three seconds remaining to put Ohio State ahead 71-70.

With two seconds remaining, Indiana threw the ball the length of the court as the buzzer sounded. But Ohio State's Derek Anderson was called for running over a pick set by Chris Reynolds. That was the fifth foul on Anderson, who had 20 points for the Buckeyes.

Reynolds went to the line with two seconds on the clock and hit the first free throw to tie it. He missed the second, and Ohio State's Alex Davis missed a 50-foot heave at the buzzer.

Former Eastern women's basketball player ends pro career in Australia

By JOHN P. ANGEL
Staff writer

Former Eastern basketball star Stacy Friedrich's basketball career didn't end after she used up her college eligibility in 1991.

Last season, she went on to play professionally in Australia.

"Like all women their game refines with age," said Eastern's women's basketball coach Barbara Hilke. "Stacy was a tremendous competitor, and was very team oriented."

Hilke said that it only makes sense that Friedrich's did so well in Australia.

Friedrich played with Victoria in the state league. There are two different divisions in the state league and they are composed of 20 teams from each division. Friedrich was the only American in her league.

"It was hard at first, but Australians love Americans," Friedrich said. "The people there are so laid back and friendly, and they love to party!"

In her first and only season, Friedrich was among the league's best in scoring, with 20 points a game, and No. 2 in rebounding with 18 rebounds a game.

"The rules are different over there," Friedrich said. "It's not as fast paced and not as physical; the referees call a lot of touchy fouls."

In her senior at Eastern, she led Eastern with 14.2 points per game and 7.9 rebounds per game on her way to being named as an honorable mention on the All-Gateway Conference team.

In her four-year career sporting a Lady Panthers' uniform, she played in all 112 games and was a two-year starter. She is also on Eastern's all-time top 10 list in scoring (1,110 points) and rebounds (642 rebounds).

Friedrich also was an assistant coach and worked with other players at lower levels. Although there was some concern about an American teaching Australians, it seemed to work well.

"The coaching part worked extremely well. I was given a lot of respect from the players," Friedrich said.

Although Friedrich found success in the Land Down Under, she will not be returning to Australia.

"It was a one time thing, although I did love every minute of it," Friedrich said.

Friedrich was offered another season by two teams, however with the money she made, she would have been lucky to be able to afford an apartment for a week, she said.

Friedrich will be getting her bachelor's degree in home economics and hospitality, from Eastern in May. That is something she's always promised her father and her coach.

FILE PHOTO

Stacy Friedrich puts a shot during one of the many games she has played in while at Eastern. Friedrich concluded her one-year professional career in Australia after playing there last year. She has now returned to Eastern hoping to complete her degree in home economics in May.

competition yet. Once we got going though we did OK," said [name].

(The tournament) was a good opportunity for the six healthy players to get a lot of playing time. Unfortunately we lost Kim for our two tournaments."

Overall, sophomore Sherri Piowarczyk led Eastern, compiling 35 kills over the four games, including 11 against Illinois Central.

Eastern will now travel to Chicago this weekend to take part in the UIC Flames Tournament, competing against Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Bradley University, Valparaiso and Northwestern.

"We'll get Kaaryn Sadler back in the line-up this weekend, which will give us seven players again. That will give me a chance to experiment a little more with our line-up," said Ralston. "We still need to work on reducing our hitting errors and being more confident with our receive patterns. The competition will be much stronger in Chicago and we'll need to improve our communication on the court to be successful."

Sherri Piowarczyk

Injuries

it everything I have."

Craft said that despite the setback, he still has high hopes for Rhudy. "She had the best fall ever had (in cross-country), and we were looking forward to the best indoor season yet. She still has a good outdoor season."

Craft added that Rhudy is critical to the success of the women's track team, and is a team leader.

"She is a model student, and a model athlete," he said. "She does everything asked of her and more. She is a good role model for the younger athletes. Her injury was discouraging, but she worked diligently and came back pretty strong. I can't say enough good things about her."

Besides the mile, Rhudy also runs in the five kilometer, and also has some goals set for that race. Last season, Rhudy qualified for the highly competitive Drake Relays by running 18:01 in a previous meet and then ran the identical time at Drake. She hopes to qualify for Drake again this year and break 17:50 in the 5K.

After college, Rhudy wants to continue running competitively.

"I would like to run in the Chicago Marathon, and compete in other road races," she said. "I also want to compete in some triathlons."

Panthers

• I have Wisconsin-Green Bay projected as finishing fourth. If the Panthers finish fifth they would draw the Phoenix in the first round.

• In the semifinals, the Panthers would play the winner of the Cleveland State-Western Illinois game. OK, so they would play Cleveland State, a team that they have taken to overtime twice this season.

• They would be in the opposite bracket as host Wright State. It would be better to play the Raiders, who I project will be the No. 2 seed, in the championship game than earlier in the tournament.

Yes this could happen, but I wouldn't bet my life on it.

If the Panthers would happen to lose their last three they would finish in seventh place and draw Wright State in the first round, which is not a very good position to be in.

The Panthers were destroyed by the Raiders earlier this year in Dayton by 24 points and hosting the conference tournament is something that Wright State has been looking forward to since it joined the conference.

So where does Eastern coach Rick Samuels think his team will wind up? He doesn't want to think about it yet.

"Don't ask me about the post-season tournament," said Samuels when joking with the press after Monday's win. "There are still a lot of games yet to be played."

Yes there are. But if the Panthers can play like they did Monday who knows what can happen.

"People may be cautious of us," said Leib. "We can play lousy some nights and then come out and play great the next."

"I just hope that we win the thing again like we did last year," he said with a smile.

So do I.

Senior overcomes adversities to star

By RYAN GIUSTI
Associate sports editor

Senior Karen McCaa is no stranger to adversity.

In fact, it has followed her throughout her four-year career on the women's basketball team. But each time she has comeback stronger and wiser and she is now helping to lead the Lady Panthers and the their stretch-drive effort to make the post-season Mid-Continent Conference tournament.

"It has been a frustrating four years," McCaa said. "But it's like a roller coaster ride; there's been just as many ups as there have been downs."

McCaa recently helped spark Eastern to a win over Western Illinois. A win that gives the Lady Panthers a good shot of making the Mid-Con tournament in March.

McCaa's list of setbacks reads like an injury reserve list from a football team. It started at the end of last season when she injured her thumb. That injury required surgery and placing a metal pin in her hand to provide support. After a two-month rehabilitation she was ready to play again.

"I'm glad we had the surgery done because now I can catch the ball and shoot the ball. Now all I need to do is start shooting the ball better," McCaa joked.

Halfway through this season, adversity struck again. McCaa came down with an illness that caused her to lose 20 pounds in about a month. This forced her into a Champaign hospital for a week. Once again, she came back.

"It really helps you see things in a different perspective. When you're away from it, you realize how much you miss it," McCaa said.

But there was still more to come. Just weeks later she sprained her ankle in a game against Wisconsin-Green Bay and was forced to miss some more playing time. She played through that injury and is now looking toward the final few games of her career.

McCaa credits her intestinal fortitude to her athletic roots and her father who is a coach at the high school she attended in Columbus, Ind.

"I just love to play," she said. "Maybe growing up having a coach for a dad makes me more determined to comeback no matter what happens. The more adversity that comes my way, the more I want to overcome it."

Eastern coach Barbara Hilke knows why McCaa has consistently been able to comeback.

"She has tremendous tenacity and a very winning attitude," Hilke said. "She is the definition of what a college athlete is. She has worked incredibly hard over her four years here."

McCaa is the only player on this year's roster that has been with the Lady Panthers for four years. This year's team is very young, featuring eight freshmen, and has struggled to a 3-19 record.

"There have been more good times than bad times and the people here are wonderful. I wouldn't trade my team for anything," McCaa said. "There's not a player or coach in the world that enjoys losing. It's just all in the way you handle it."

Being a co-captain for such a young team will give McCaa some valuable experience for what she hopes to do when she graduates. She hopes to go to grad school and be a graduate assistant somewhere. After that she would like to move on to a head coaching job at the college level.

"I can't think of anything that would be more exciting than coaching," McCaa said. The ups and downs are incredible. The highs are high and the lows are low. It's an incredible feeling."

Senior Karen McCaa runs the offense during practice Tuesday afternoon in Lantz Gym. McCaa, who has been hampered by injuries and an illness throughout entire season, has battled back into the starting lineup. The Indiana native scored a season-high 16 points in the Lady Panthers' 77-71 win over Western Illinois Saturday night. That win put Eastern in driver's seat to claim the final playoff spot in the conference tournament

Can anyone figure these Panthers?

Trying to figure out Eastern's men's basketball team is a tough task.

Should the Panthers be considered one of the most feared teams to play in the Mid-Continent Conference Tournament?

Are they the most inconsistent team in the conference?

Are they the most dangerous?

Most feared. Maybe.

Inconsistent. Yes.

Dangerous. Definitely.

Eastern isn't supposed to win the conference tournament this year. What is more likely expected of them is a brief one-game appearance in the Nutter Center at Wright State University.

You would have a hard time trying to sell that to any of the Panthers though.

Said junior center Curtis Leib following the Panthers' upset win over second-place Wright State Monday, "We know that we can beat anyone in the conference if we play up to our ability. The season isn't over yet."

Leib knows what he is talking about. He was one of the key forces in last year's late-season success.

Most of these Panthers remember last year's mediocre 14-13 regular season finish and 9-7 conference record. They also remember the three games they won in a row at the conference tournament that sent them into the NCAA Tournament.

With three conference games remaining before the tournament tips off on March 7, the Panthers are caught in what amounts to be a horse race.

The Panthers are too far out to finish in the money, but they can still creep up to the middle of the pack with a couple of victories.

Right now they are 5-8 and in sole possession of seventh place. With home wins over Wisconsin-Green Bay on Thursday, Valparaiso on Saturday and at Illinois-Chicago next Wednesday, the Panthers would finish with an 8-8 conference mark.

Finishing 8-8 would probably put the Panthers in either fifth or sixth place in a tie with UIC. A fifth-place finish would be the Panthers' best bet for advancement in the tournament for the following reasons:

Injuries can not slow down women's track standout

By PETE KATES

Ti Jaye Rhudy knows comebacks.

After being sidelined for three months with a back injury, Rhudy came back strong to post a 5:21 in the mile at the Indiana Invitational on Feb. 5. She surprised even herself, running good enough to qualify for the finals out of a field of 26 other runners.

Rhudy, a senior art education major, suffered her injury late in the cross country season in the fall and has been limited to aqua-jogging and biking for almost three months. The fact that Rhudy had done very little training prior to the Indiana Invitational makes her accomplishment all the more impressive. She is now right on schedule as far as expected times go for this part of the season.

"I was expecting to run 10 to 15 seconds slower, but I actually ran a little better than what I generally start out at," Rhudy said.

Rhudy now seems poised to take the outdoor season by storm.

"The main thing for Ti Jaye now is to get the kinks out. She needs to get a few races under her belt, and get her confidence back," women's track coach John Craft said.

"I'm really looking forward to the outdoor season," Rhudy said. "My goal is to break five minutes in the mile. It has been a goal of mine every year, and since this is my last year, I'm going to

Lady Panthers start spring claiming tournament crown

The Eastern women's volleyball team started the spring training season on the right foot, capturing the team title at the College of St. Francis Tournament this past weekend.

The Lady Panthers started slowly against Rosary College, dropping a 13-15, 15-8, 11-15 decision. Hurting the Lady Panthers worse than the loss was an injury to middle-hitter Kim Traub - an All-Mid-Continent Conference player this fall - to an ankle injury that coach Betty Ralston said will sideline her the rest of the spring.

That left the Lady Panthers with the minimum contingent of six players for the remainder of the tournament.

Despite being shorthanded and having several players playing outside of their regular positions, Eastern came back strong to win its final three matches of the day. The Lady Panther downed Illinois Central College 9-15, 15-7, 15-12, host St. Francis 13-15, 16-14, 15-13 and Illinois Chicago - the only other Division I school at the tournament - 15-12, 15-9. The 3-0 record was enough for Eastern to capture the tournament crown.

"The first match we came out kind of slow, partially because we weren't used to playing
